COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE

NOW that the colonel's declaration has brought the question of compulsory military service within the sphere of practical politics, it should be interesting to know what would be the size of a standing army in America supposing that we should contemplate such a folly, queries the San Francisco Chronicle.

On a population basis, we would not have a miniature army of 50,000, but a standing force of nearly 11,000,000. Imagine that number of the flower of the manhood of America abstracted from the useful industries and employed not as producers but as consumers of wealth. Today we do not think of the soldier as a parasite because he is merely an incidental guest of the nation, but multiply him twenty-two times and we begin to be reminded of the fact that there is a new mouth to fill. We can afford to have armies just as big as those of Europe, that is to say, we can afford to have them today, but after we had indulged in that luxury for any considerable length of time we would find them an even heavier burden.

Americans will consent to be shot for far less than they will agree to work, but they want much better pay as soldiers than Europeans will accept as workers. This means that a standing army for America would cost an enormous pile of money. Eleven million men in uniforms instead of in jeans would mean a very considerable decrease in the total output of our industries, and there would consequently be a great reduction in the wealth out of which their upkeep would have to be paid. There would be no trouble in imitating Europe, the only question is: Would it be worth while? Would this be the same sweet land of liberty if we had compulsory military service?

NEVADA IS BECOMING AROUSED

MINING of money metals is as exact a science as astronomy, the one being directed upward and the other downward, both on vertical planes. Values cannot be obtained from the ground by bulling the public any more than a parallax may be secured by writing a poem dedicated to the star from which the measurements are taken.

Nevada has not hitherto been particularly careful in applying scientific principles to mining. It lost a couple of hundred million dollars in not caring for its Comstock tailings, which were irretrievably carried away. It built mills before it had mines. It provided mahogany furniture for fiscal agents and gave its miners powder that had frozen and thawed and was an extra hazardous risk in both loading the holes and in executing their mission.

If the customs that Nevada followed in extracting the treasure from the earth had been adopted by the management of mills and factories, the latter would have either blown up or been received long before they had an opportunity to produce their wares. Happily there is a little business sense being interjected into mining nowadays. The practical man in respectable looking hand-me-down or commercially tailored suit has replaced the fellow who screwed a diamond into the breast of a leather shirt.

There are economies in the front office as well as in the shaft. The rule of three is applied to all operations. Conservation is the watchword, scientific principles the application and energy the impelling influence in mining.

The stuff that is in the ground is being taken out as a dentist tackles the molar, not as the hypnotist works on his feeble-minded subject. The gold and silver and the useful metals are in the ground in Nevada and it has become the business of brain and brawn to get them out, not to influence investors to buy double sixes for junketers or supply champagne for promotion parties. Nevada has gotten some sense at last and mining is developing into an exact science. If this condition had been reached a couple of decades ago, the state would not now be the laggard in the procession of the sisterhood.

BRITISH WORKMEN DEMAND SILVER

THE men in England who are employed are being paid their wages in government scrip, promises to pay that are not adequately backed in view of the fact that the nation has become not only a heavy borrower from its own people but has distributed its I. O. U.'s all over the known world. The men and women who have not gone to the front because of the necessity that demanded their remaining at home to perform the necessary tasks, do not feel as though they were properly requited through being paid in promises to pay.

What the workmen demand and what they should receive is subsidiary coin, metal money with not only the stamp of the government upon it, but actual value under the seal. It is very evident that England, and other European nations as well, will shortly be compelled to make large purchases of silver for coinage and the reserves that have been accumulated in the United States will quickly disappear and the demand will be so heavy that the owners of silver mines will reap a richer harvest than has been their portion at any time since the day when silver was monetized and occupied its proper place with reference to gold, the ratio of sixteen ounces to one.

THIS IS THE ACCEPTED COURSE

NOW that the season is growing old and auto tourists have had opportunity to attempt the Lincoln highway from Ely westward and have been forced to return by way of the Midland route, it is becoming apparent that the latter will hereafter be the accepted course of travel across the continent. It is stated by all who have tried both routes that the Midland is immeasurably the better, while it possesses the splendid advantage of being open throughout the year, the Truckee road being closed for about half the twelve months by reason of the heavy snow in the Sierran region and the washouts that occur when the snow banks are dissipated.

To the added advantage of the Midland is the building of the Tiogo road, which will not only decrease the distance to San Francisco, but will afford much more magnificent scenery than the Lincoln boasts of. The Midland gives opportunity to make either San Francisco or Los Angeles the objective point. All that is needed is to divorce the county commissioners of Nye from their arduous duties as aldermen of Tonopah and get them busy on the roads of the county, which can be converted into boulevards at little cost. It might also be well to stick a pin into the Nye County Good Roads club and the Automobile association, to see whether or not the hookworm has claimed them for its own.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following prices f. o. b. Detroit, effective August 2, 1915:

Ford Runabout.....$390.00
 Ford Touring Car.....440.00
 Ford Town Car.....540.00

No speedometer included in this year's equipment, otherwise cars fully equipped.

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1916.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between Aug. 1, 1914, and Aug. 1, 1915, we would share profits with retail purchasers to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car.

We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay. Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date. We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.
